NER TAMID

Jessica and Eric Zachs

Believing that “the centralities of being Jewish are the lessons of Torah, the importance of the State of Israel, and their connection to living your life,” Jessica and Eric Zachs live these values and ideals through their personal actions, the examples they set for their children, and their commitment to the wider community in which they live. Their generous support of the entire Jewish Community and its member agencies are true examples of Tikkun Olam.

Jessica and Eric have been active at Solomon Schechter Day School since 1993 when Benjamin entered kindergarten. Jacob and Zoë also joined Schechter when they were in kindergarten. Both Jessica and Eric have served on the Schechter Board; Jessica was a vice-president and this June she will be completing her term as Co-President, which she began in 2015.

Jessica and Eric’s volunteer efforts extend beyond Schechter. They have both served on the Greater Hartford Jewish Federation Board, assuming active fundraising and community awareness roles. Jessica served on the Jewish Community Foundation of Greater Hartford Board and remains on the Grants Committee. She served two terms on the Connecticut Children’s Medical Center Foundation Board and is a class officer for Cornell University. Nationally, she was a member of the National Young Leadership Cabinet where she was Campaign Co-Chair in 2001. Currently, she is on the National Women’s Philanthropy Board and Co-Chair of Recruitment and Engagement for the 2019 International Lion of Judah

Conference. Eric has given his time to many Jewish and community non-profits. He was President of the Mandell Jewish Community Center and Hartford County Chair of the ADL and served on the Community Capital Campaign Executive Committee. Most recently, he was Campaign Chair of the Greater Hartford Jewish Federation before becoming Chair and now serves as Chair Emeritus. Eric served as co-chair of the Aim Chai Endowment Campaign, which raised over $40 million for community agencies. He is currently on the Board of the Hartford Dispensary which treats 6000 opiate addicts per month and is on the Hartford Regional Board of Hartford Healthcare. Previously, he served on the boards of Saint Francis Hospital Foundation, Hartford Hospital and the University of Connecticut Foundation.

In 2006, along with Eric's parents, the Zachs family was honored with the ADL's "Torch of Liberty Award," recognizing families and individuals for their philanthropic works and the humanitarian values passed from one generation to the next.

Jessica and Eric have traveled to Israel many times; they just returned last week. Eric's first trip was in the summer of 1977, when he spent the summer working at Kibbutz Bet Keshet. Jessica's first trip was with Eric and other participants of Dor L'Dor (From Generation to Generation), a Federation-sponsored program. Over the years, they have participated in and chaired various Federation missions. Jessica participated in the Hazon Bike Ride. More than once they have shared unforgettable trips to Israel with their children.

When Benjamin was in eighth grade at Schechter, Jessica and Eric generously established a fund to ensure all classmates would be able to travel together to Israel. Due to the political situation at the time, the trip was cancelled but the fund remained with the school to benefit future students.

Jessica and Eric have passed their passion of helping others onto their children.

Benjamin is currently a member of the Schechter Board of Trustees; he co-chaired the search committee that brought Andrea Kasper to the school. While in college, he was the Movember Big Man on Campus, raising the most money nationwide for men's cancer awareness. After graduation, Ben worked for Teach for America and served on the Action Academy Board, crafting the application for a new Philadelphia charter school. He has also worked at Pearson Publishing and Bridgewater Associates. Ben and Paige married in 2015. Upon graduation from college, Paige was a Strategy and Senior Associate at PricewaterhouseCoopers. Until recently, Paige was the Operations Strategy Manager for Warby Parker. Paige volunteers with Minds Matter NYC, providing personal coaching, mentoring, and college preparatory assistance to high school students from low-income families.

During college, Jacob interned for George Stephanopoulos and various senators and congressmen on Capitol Hill. While in college he was on the board of GW Acting Politically for Israel. After graduation, he worked on Corey Booker's Senate Campaign. Currently, he is Senior Sales Executive for Newsela, an educational technology firm promoting literacy in grades 2-12 and community colleges through use of non-fiction. Jacob spent a summer abroad with Alexander Muss Summer Program in Israel and will be participating on Birthright this summer.

While in college, Zoë participated in fundraising for Saint Jude's Children's Research Hospital. She spent her semester abroad at Tel Aviv University. Two years ago, Zoë graduated with a Master's Degree in Social Work from Columbia University. As a LMSW, Zoë began her career at a residential treatment facility in the Bronx for children with severe behavioral and psychological disorders. She is now a therapist at a Mount Sinai School-Based Health Center in East Harlem.

Jessica and Eric are extremely proud of their four children and all their accomplishments.

Featured Guest Matisyahu

Singer-songwriter Matisyahu has been on a journey inward for more than a decade. The journey has at times been explicitly external, even while being driven by internal change. Now nearly thirteen years after the release of his first studio record, Matisyahu and his band have done something unmatched in his past repertoire; they have crafted that journey into a musically thematic eight song movement.

ANN AND JEREMY PAVA

The vitality and vibrancy of our Jewish Community depends upon a village mentality where we do not just help ourselves but help others. Our institutions, temples, philanthropic agencies, day schools, cultural/athletic centers, markets and the like, are key components of this vitality and vibrancy and make us all so proud to be a part of the Greater Hartford Jewish Community (with the emphasis on Greater).

Institutions are comprised of people who are employed by and volunteer to actualize the mission statements of the individual institutions. These institutions actualize their goals with the cooperation and dedication of community-spirited individuals.

The three generations of the Zachs family are an exemplary of this type of community-spirited individuals. For decades, they have invested time and treasure, acumen and experience, and resolve and passion, in the pursuit of the betterment of Jewish Life in our community.

It is a privilege to live among them and an honor to celebrate them.

Our family has been a grateful beneficiary of all they have done for Solomon Schechter Day School, as well as all the other institutions in our area.
